

Kamay Botany Bay

I was only 8 but I still will always remember that great excitement bubbling up inside my body. I was so excited because it was my first time there. Also because that was where captain cook landed on the first fleet.

Once we got there Peter showed us the stuffed animals. The other thing he showed us was the aboriginal's tools like the boomerang and the hunting boomerang. After that they put our classes in different areas.

We firstly got to the museum and saw a display of Captain Cook's ship. Then we saw a real life cannon that was dumped out of Captain Cook's ship and a cannon ball was in another place. Then we walked down and had some free time I looked at this thing where you have to turn on the light and look in the hole and then you can see the animal.

After the museum we went on the history walk on the history walk the first stop was the bushes and paint brush. The first then after we saw that we found captain cook's cannon and cannon ball. Lastly we had free play the thing that interested me was a thing where you put a light on then you can see a bird.

After the museum we went to the place where captain cook landed. Then we walked up the trail that he and his crew walked up. That's where we sat down on the remembrance thing.

Lastly we went on the bush walk and he showed us the Band Aids but they didn't stick. We saw a termite nest on the walk we also saw an aboriginal paint brush. We lastly saw an aboriginal hair brush which they brushed their hair with so their hair will not get very knotty.
